

At Home Ashfield

'The people whom I have seen succeed best in life always have been cheerful and hopeful people'

Charles Kingsley

Ashfield is a newly built specialist care unit for people made vulnerable by dementia. It is situated in the mature grounds of Allonsfield House, once a fine Suffolk farmhouse and now a lovingly converted residential care home in the rural village of Campsea Ashe.

Campsea Ashe sits on the River Deben is a quiet corner of Suffolk, yet is easily accessible by road and rail. Visiting Ashfield is never difficult and always a pleasure. Residents enjoy high standards of professional care from staff trained to deal with dementia. Care for people with dementia requires a sensitive balance of stimulation and individualised care.

Each resident has their own room each with their own en-suite room, every person who lives at Ashfield gets the individual attention they need to truly feel at home here.

If someone you love has developed dementia, we have the expertise and experience to look after them. Why not make an appointment to visit and see for yourself.

Every Kingsley home is a community in itself. Each new resident is encouraged to furnish their room with their favourite things, creating personal space to enjoy alone or share with visiting family and friends. As with any community, there are a number of places to meet, to talk, to think and to share a full and varied programme of organised activities and a chance to relax alone or with the company of others.

Kingsley Care homes welcome visitors and are always happy to show families round any of their homes. Moving from independent living to a community of like minded people, is not a step to be taken lightly. If you are considering residential care for yourself, or your loved one, you will be made welcome at any Kingsley care home.
